Father Paul's Reflections on the Readings

14th Sunday in Ordinary Time

In today's Gospel, Jesus called seventy-two and sent them in two by two. Following Jesus means putting him first. Jesus mission can never be accomplished by clinging on to our resources and expertise. Jesus tells us: unpack all you have and pack my power, message and presence into yourself. When we shed our worldly baggage of selfishness and pride, possessions and positions, hatred, name and fame, and cling to Jesus' treasure of love and compassion we shall be counted as credible witnesses of his earthly life and mission. Only then can we all claim to allow God to act in us and work miracles in our lives so as to bring forth His kingdom here on earth. On the road to our destiny, halfway through every person is tempted to give up. Some turn around and go back. Some others, stay committed and keeping forward. The most interesting thing is that both people travel the same distance. One goes half way back to where he started, other one goes half a way ahead and reach the goal.
